

Meet the Volunteer Resources Working Group (VRWG)

Overview

The Volunteer Resources Working Group (VRWG) focuses on facilitating a high-quality CAS volunteer experience, and overseeing and enhancing volunteer resources, processes, and communications.

How does work of the Volunteer Resources Working Group support the CAS membership?

The VRWG oversees the volunteer recruitment process through the CAS Volunteer Interest and Participation (VIP) Survey, manages volunteer awards programs and appreciation activities, and supports volunteer retention by developing best practices and training materials for volunteers and volunteer leaders.

From the Chairs

“Serving as a volunteer for the CAS has been a rewarding experience for me both personally and professionally. Our working group exists to ensure other volunteers have an equally positive experience and are able to give back to the CAS and to the profession in meaningful ways.”

—Wes Griffiths, Volunteer Chair

“The Volunteer Resources Working Group supports nearly 3,000 CAS volunteers! I’m extremely proud of the steps we’ve made in recent years to more effectively match members with volunteer opportunities that align with their areas of interest and expertise. Now volunteers can include this information on their profile within the Volunteer Interest & Participation Survey.”

—Shelby Wolff, Staff Chair
